

Tour Sintra

Sintra: Sintra is a Portuguese city located in the Lisbon region, known for its natural beauty, history, and cultural heritage. With its mountains, palaces, castles, and lush gardens, Sintra is one of the most visited destinations in Portugal and offers a unique journey through time.

Pena Palace: Pena National Palace is Sintra's most famous building. It's a fantasy castle, like Neuschwanstein but built in the 1840s (earlier than Ludwig's castle) and containing all the romantic accoutrements an architect might think of, from drawbridges to turrets to gargoyles. The transformation of the palace to the Summer residence of Portugal's royal family brought in some fascinating trompe-l'oeil and tile from the 19th century; see the Royal dining room and Noble room, as well as the Kitchen and be impressed. Surrounding the palace is Pena Park, a compendium of exotic plants and trees from the far-off lands of the Portuguese empire observed from its labyrinth of paths—as well as the usual statuary, black swans, a hunting lodge and various villas.
